“Since coming back to my office today and reviewing the day’s topics, it has occurred to me that all the focus was on international students. The title of the forum was Engagement and Employability; IEAA Student Life forum - not international student life forum. As Phil Honeywood opened the day and stated how much revenue international study generates, I would ask that we do not forget the needs of domestic students - those students who originate from the country; those students who originate from interstate - they are also strange to the environment. Just because they have English as a first subject does not mean that their experience is safe and secure?
Overall I did enjoy the day - thank you”
